The one trail I am most excited about

Hike the whole state, one county at a time.

Welcome, hiker

California has thousands of trails worth walking, spread across 58 counties. Most guides keep sending you back to the same handful of famous hikes. This passport is for the other kind of hiker: the one who wants to know what a place like Modoc, Merced or Mendocino has to offer.

Every county gets its own chapter. First comes an illustrated county page with a trail checklist and a spot for your county stamp. After it come log cards for each hike. The guide trails arrive pre-filled. The blank logs are for everything we did not list, because you will find trails of your own.

We built it because we kept hitting the same wall ourselves. Searching for a trail near a small town gave us either the same five iconic hikes or scattered, out-of-date trip reports. So we started working through the state systematically, county by county, trail by trail. This passport is the part of that work you can print, tap and fill in.

58 counties, from Del Norte to Imperial 421 guide trails, each checked against published sources

435 blank logs for the hikes you discover yourself

11 hidden gems that independent sources call underrated

A note from Omar

O

Hi, I'm Omar.

Avid trekker · californiahikingtrails.com

I have more than four years of firsthand backcountry hiking behind me, and for the past six months I have been doing deep, on-the-ground trail research across California. I run californiahikingtrails.com for people who want honest trail information instead of fluff.

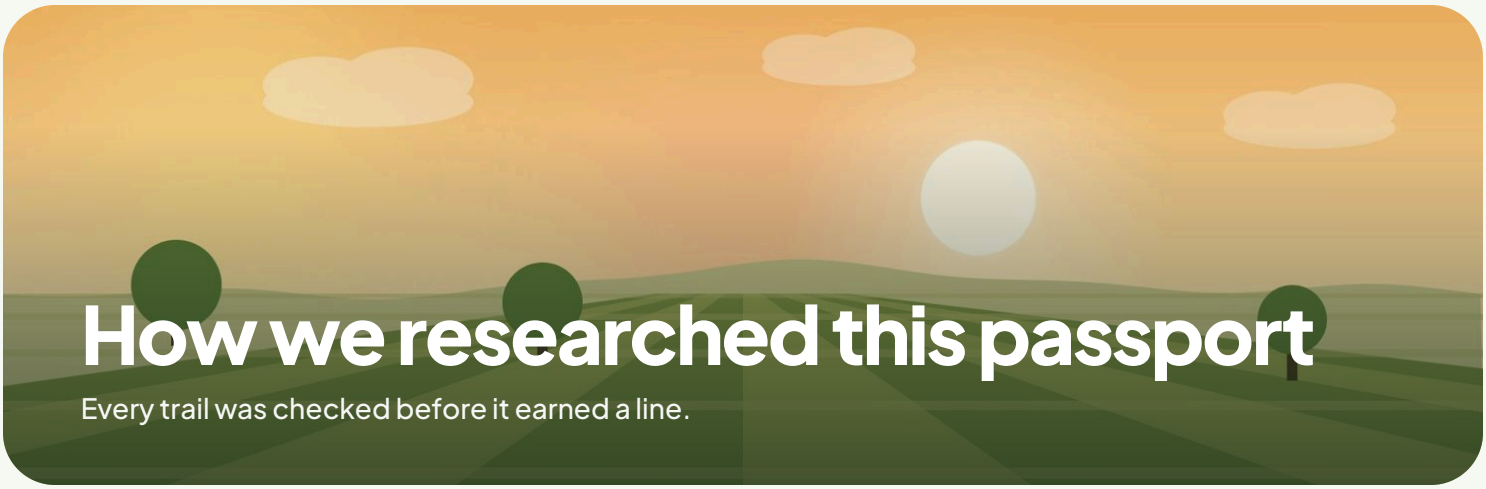

I made this passport because finishing a trail deserves a little ceremony: a date, a rating, a note about who came along, and a stamp that says you were really there. Do that across 58 counties and you have not just visited California. You have read it.

I also made myself one promise while building it. I would rather print three real trails for a county than invent a fourth to fill the page. You will see that in Kings and Sutter, and in Calaveras with seven. Honest beats padded.

If you find a wrong trail name, a closed trail or a hidden gem we missed, please tell me. The contact link is on the last pages of this book.

See you out there.

Omar

How we researched this passport

Every trail was checked before it earned a line.

The rule we followed

A trail only made it into a county chapter if its name and its county matched published sources. Those sources include park and agency pages, guidebooks and trail sites such as Komoot, The Outbound and Hiking Project. The log behind this passport lists about 300 different sources, and we keep it so any entry can be re-checked.

Distance, climbing and difficulty are printed only where our own guide covers that exact trail, which is 101 of the 421. Where difficulty says (est.), we estimated it from distance and climbing. Everywhere else the fields stay blank for you to fill in.

How well each trail is backed

421 trails

- 138 three or more sources
- 126 an official or guidebook source plus others
- 80 two sources
- 77 a single source (8 of them an official or guidebook source)

344 of 421 trails (82%) are backed by two or more sources. Single-source trails are the first to re-check, so double-check those before you go.

Where we printed fewer trails

Three counties came up short, and we chose not to pad them.

7 of 8

Calaveras. Lake Alpine and Bear Valley trails sit in Alpine County.

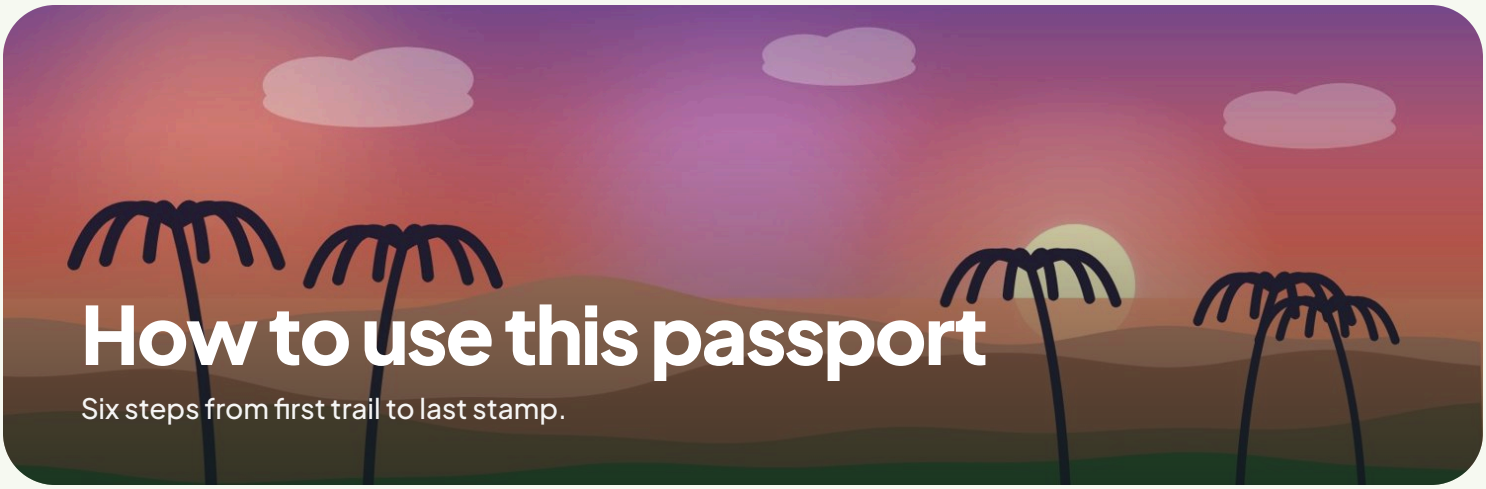

3 of 8

Kings. Mostly flat city and refuge walks. Kings Canyon is in Fresno and Tulare.

3 of 4

Sutter. Gray Lodge is in Butte, and Sutter Buttes allows guided tours only.

Trails change. Fires, floods, closures and new permit rules can alter a hike overnight. Treat this book as a planning and logging tool, and always confirm conditions with the land manager before you go.

How to use this passport

Six steps from first trail to last stamp.

1. Find your county

Tap a name in the Contents or on the Stamp Board and you land on that county page.

2. Hike and tick

Tick the trail on the county page, then tick the box on its log card.

3. Fill in the card

Add the date, weather, who came along, a rating and a few notes while it is fresh.

4. Press a stamp

Use the dashed circle for a stamp, sticker, drawing or your initials. Anything counts.

5. Log your own trails

Blank log cards follow the guide trails in every county. Use them for any hike we did not list.

6. Finish the county

When every trail is ticked, stamp the big county circle and the Stamp Board tile.

The no catch-up rule

The passport is a record, not a report card. Skip a county, hike out of order, leave a card empty. Never double up to make up for a slow month. Just hike the next trail.

Make it fit your life

Short on time? Pick the shortest trail in a county. New to hiking? Start with trails marked Easy (est.) near home. Travelling? Use the Stamp Board to plan stops.

Before you go, and how to leave it better

Good habits that keep trails open and people safe.

Check the official source

Land managers post closures, fire damage, permit rules and trailhead notices. Read the park or forest page the day before.

Tell someone your plan

Share the trailhead, the route and the time you expect to be back.

Carry the basics

Water, food, layers, sun protection, a light, a map that works offline and a first-aid kit. The Ten Essentials in the glossary make a good checklist.

Respect heat and the clock

Start early, set a turnaround time and take afternoon heat and storms seriously.

Expect no signal

Download maps before you leave and know your route without a phone.

Know your limits

Distances and ratings in this book are approximate. Choose a trail that suits you and your group today.

Leave No Trace

The seven principles from the Leave No Trace Center guide how we behave outdoors. Follow them on every trail in this passport. Our own guide explains each one in more detail at californiahikingtrails.com/leave-no-trace.

1. Plan ahead and prepare
2. Travel and camp on durable surfaces
3. Dispose of waste properly
4. Leave what you find
5. Minimize campfire impacts
6. Respect wildlife
7. Be considerate of other visitors

This passport is a planning and logging tool. It is not a navigation guide or safety instruction, and hiking carries real risk. Use your own judgment and confirm current conditions with the land manager.

Hiker's glossary

Words and slang you will hear at the trailhead, explained.

Trail and terrain

Trailhead
Where a trail begins, usually with parking and a sign or map.

Switchback
A zigzag turn that makes a steep slope easier to climb.

Scree
Small loose rocks on a slope that slide under your feet.

Talus
A slope of larger broken rocks, from fist-sized to boulders. Go slowly and test each step.

Cairn
A stack of stones that marks the route, handy on bare rock. Leave existing ones alone and do not build new ones.

Blaze
A paint mark or marker on a tree, rock or post that shows where the trail goes.

Saddle
The low point between two peaks or high points along a ridge.

False summit
A high point that looks like the top, until you reach it and see more climbing ahead.

Ford
To wade across a stream or river. Also the crossing itself.

Duff
The soft layer of rotting needles and leaves on a forest floor.

Use trail
An informal path worn by foot traffic rather than built by a land manager. Also called a social trail.

Spur
A short side trail to a viewpoint, lake or campsite.

Traverse
To cross a slope sideways instead of going straight up or down.

Scramble
Steep terrain where you use your hands as well as your feet to move.

Elevation gain
The total amount you climb over a hike. It is not the same as the elevation of the highest point.

Route shapes and hiking styles

Out-and-back
You hike to a turnaround point, then return the way you came.

Loop
The route brings you back to the start without repeating the same ground.

Lollipop
You walk out along a stem, hike a loop at the end, and return along the same stem.

Point-to-point
You start and finish at different trailheads, so you need a shuttle or a ride.

Day hike
A hike you finish in one day, with no overnight stay.

Section hike
Hiking a long trail in separate pieces over time.

Thru-hike
Hiking a long trail from one end to the other in a single continuous effort.

Peak bagging
Collecting summits, often from a list, such as every peak over a certain height.

Gear, camp life and the slang of the trail.

Gear and camp

Base weight
What your pack weighs without food, water and fuel.

Ten Essentials
A classic safety checklist: navigation, headlamp, sun protection, first aid, knife, fire, shelter, extra food, extra water and extra clothes.

Bear canister
A hard-sided container that keeps food away from bears. Some California areas require one, so check local rules.

Cathole
A small hole for human waste, dug 6 to 8 inches deep and about 200 feet from water, camps and trails.

Cowboy camping
Sleeping outside without a tent.

Dry camp
A campsite with no water nearby, so you carry in what you need.

Resupply
Restocking food and supplies in a town or at a drop point during a long hike.

Trail culture and slang

HYOH
Short for hike your own hike. Everyone sets their own pace, style and goals.

Trail angel
A person who helps hikers with rides, food or a place to rest.

Trail magic
An unexpected kindness on the trail, such as snacks or cold drinks left out for hikers.

Trail name
A nickname that hikers take or are given, often from something that happened on the trail.

Zero day
A day on which you hike zero miles, usually to rest.

Nero
A near-zero day with only a few miles of hiking.

Hiker hunger
The enormous appetite that arrives after days of heavy hiking.

Beta
Insider information about a route, its conditions or its water sources.

NOBO / SOBO
Northbound and southbound hikers on a long trail.

Bonk
A sudden crash of energy, usually from not eating or drinking enough.

Bluebird day
A clear, cloudless, blue-sky day.

Alpine start
Leaving before dawn to beat afternoon heat or mountain storms.

California weather and the names you will meet.

California conditions

Marine layer
Low coastal cloud and fog. When it hangs around in early summer it is nicknamed June gloom.

Santa Ana winds
Hot, dry offshore winds in Southern California that raise fire danger.

Postholing
Sinking deep into soft snow with every step.

Sun cups
Bowl-shaped dips that form on late-season snow and slow your walking.

High water
Fast, cold stream flow during snowmelt, which can make crossings dangerous.

Burn scar
Land changed by wildfire. Watch for falling trees and flash floods.

Blowdown
Trees knocked across a trail by wind or storms.

Names you will meet

PCT
The Pacific Crest Trail, which runs the length of California on its way from Mexico to Canada.

JMT
The John Muir Trail, a famous route through the Sierra Nevada.

Fourteener
A peak above 14,000 feet. Mount Whitney is the best-known one in California.

Class 1 to 5
The Yosemite Decimal System scale for terrain. Class 1 is walking, Class 3 is scrambling with hands, Class 5 is technical roped climbing.

LNT
Leave No Trace, the seven principles for low-impact outdoor use.

Hidden gem
In this passport, a trail that at least one independent source calls little-known, hidden or underrated.

The Ten Essentials checklist

- [ ] Navigation: a map, compass or offline GPS
- [ ] Headlamp with spare batteries
- [ ] Sun protection: hat, sunglasses, sunscreen
- [ ] First-aid kit
- [ ] Knife or multi-tool
- [ ] Fire: lighter or waterproof matches
- [ ] Shelter: an emergency blanket or bivy
- [ ] Extra food
- [ ] Extra water or a way to treat it
- [ ] Extra clothes for weather changes

Common trail etiquette

Hikers heading uphill generally have the right of way, so step aside for them on narrow trail.

Yield to horses and pack animals. Step to the downhill side and speak calmly.

Keep dogs leashed where required and pick up after them.

Stay on the trail and skip the shortcuts between switchbacks.

Keep speakers off. Headphones in one ear is a good compromise.

Who we are

California Hiking Trails was built with one goal: to be the most complete county-by-county guide to hiking in California, from the redwood coast of Mendocino to the desert canyons of Riverside and everywhere in between.

We are a small, hands-on team. Writers spend real time researching California's trail systems, parks and public land access rules, and a developer keeps the site fast and easy to use. We are not a large outdoor media brand and we are not trying to be. We are hikers who wanted a better resource and decided to build it.

Our approach is simple. We pull from official land management sources, cross-check wherever possible, and organise everything for how people really search. We would rather tell you a trail is closed, exposed or not dog-friendly than let you find out the hard way.

The site is still growing. We are publishing new county guides and trail write-ups all the time, and working through the state systematically. This passport grows with it.
